

Tailor-made

A long overdue transformation that incorporates a modern approach for a time gone by

A new kitchen had been a long time coming for owners of this fabulous South Sydney home and by the time they were ready to take the leap into a renovation, they had a comprehensive and specific list of what they wanted and needed to make it work.

From finalising their wish list the owners went on to bringing it to fruition. Once they had their ideal space realised in design, they needed to find a builder who could make this dream a reality. There was only one choice for them and the team at Tailored Construction Group was excited to come on board and begin building.

The original space was 30 years old, completely closed off from the rest of the home and in great need of an entire update from new appliances to creating more shelving and bringing more light into the dull space.

The main desire for the kitchen was for it to be considerably larger and flowing from the living spaces beyond to create one large room.

With the format and flow taken care of, it was time to move on to the look of the new space with the owners wanting to retain the early 1900s style of the rest of the home. Clever design allows modern storage spaces, appliances and configuration to blend with these classic finishes.

A traditional timber floor was chosen in Blackbutt tongue-and-groove with a gloss tung oil finish. The natural look was continued with Western Red Cedar for the windows. A brand new level ceiling joins the kitchen and dining room and replaces the mismatched raked and flat ceilings that once inhibited the union.

Finishing touches were added with plaster cornices, chic low-voltage downlights and a selection of quality appliances.

The result is a spectacular example of a space being brought into the 21st century but retaining the look and feel of a time gone by. Tailored Construction Group has again done a superb job of taking a dream space from paper to possibility.
